CARROLL, James 8 January 1900

Designation	Accident Location	Accident Due to
Guard	11 Mile Mill, Waroona	Shunting operations

James Carroll died after falling from a wagon while shunting. He was run over and fatally injured. He lived at Waroona with his wife and child.

FATAL ACCIDENT.
YARLOOP, January 9.
A young man named James Carroll met with a fatal accident at Waroona today. Carroll was employed as running guard for the Gill, McDowell Company on the Waroona line, and while shunting two loaded trucks at the Eleven-Mile Mill, at 10 o'clock this morning, he attempted to jump on to the same while they were in motion. His foot slipped, and he fell across the line. The trucks passed over his thighs, almost completely severing both legs from the body. The unfortunate man was brought down to Waroona, and sent on to the Bunbury Hospital by today's train, but he died from injuries while on the train. The deceased leaves a wife and one child, who live at Waroona.'

Source: Trove/The Western Mail (Perth) 13 January 1900 Page 52./The West Australian (Perth) Wednesday 10 January 1900 Page 4.