YOUNG, John 8 January 1924

Designation	Incident Location	Incident Due to
Porter	Bunbury	Collapsed on duty

John Young was 46 years of age when collapsed while on duty at Bunbury. He never regained consciousness and died at 10 o'clock that night. John had a stroke some six months prior to his collapse and was partially paralysed. John was married and lived in Bunbury, he was interred in the Anglican portion of the Bunbury Cemetery.

A SUDDEN DEATH.
JOHN YOUNG.
FUNERAL YESTERDAY.
The death took place at the Government Hospital on Tuesday last of John Young, aged 46 years. Deceased was in the employment of the government Railways until the time of his death and resided in Symmonds Street, Bunbury. Prior to his coming to Western Australia nine years ago, he was a resident of Carrick Fergus Island. The remains were interred in the Anglican portion of the New Cemetery yesterday afternoon. The chief mourner was Mrs. L. Young, widow. The Rev. Canon Adams officiated at the graveside. The pall-bearers were Messrs. F. M. Young, T. D. Prosser, representing the Bunbury Lodge: Messrs. Elston, Jeffreys, R. Brothers, I.T. Christianson, representing the Railways. Numerous wreaths and floral tributes were placed at the graveside including loving wife, Worshipful Master, officers and brethren of the Southern Cross Lodge, and Railway employees, Bunbury. The funeral arrangements were in the hands of Messrs. W. Brittain and Son.

Source: Trove/The Bunbury Herald and Blackwood Express (WA) Friday 11 January 1924 Page 5.

SUDDEN DEATH
OF RAILWAY PORTER.
John Young, a porter, employed at the Bunbury Railway Station, who suddenly collapsed just before midday, on Tuesday last, and was immediately conveyed to the Government Hospital, died at ten o'clock the same night, without having regained consciousness. It is understood that Young, who was a married man, and lived at Symmons Street, Bunbury suffered from paralysis and had never recovered from a serious stroke with which he was attacked about six months ago.

The funeral took place this afternoon, leaving the deceased's residence at 2.30 p.m.

Source: Trove/South Western Times (Bunbury) Thursday 10 January 1924 Page2.